II. In Syria, Communist-supported Gov't candidates won three out of the four parliamentary seats in the 4-5 May by-elections.

A. Gov't victory was brought about by manipulation of electoral machinery, plus Soviet financial support. Among tactics employed by the government were:

1. Turning away of rightist voters from polling places on grounds not "registered".
2. Deletion of rightists' names from election lists.
3. Use of police and army to campaign, distribute leftist propaganda, intimidate and even kidnap rightist voters.

4. Use of Gov't and Army vehicles to bring leftist voters to polls.
  5. Buying of votes and multiple-voting with false identity cards.
- B. Election results illustrate both extent of leftist control of Syria and future pattern of leftist action--intimidation, pressure, manipulation.
1. Opposition forces disheartened, but returns may stimulate conservative officer group in Army to halt further loss of their influence.
  2. "Second-round" transfers of leftist-oriented officers to less influential posts has reportedly begun.
  3. Transfer of conservative General Daghestani (former Israeli front commander) to command of key Damascus & Qatana garrisons may be indicative of future conservative strategy.
- C. Meanwhile, leftists reportedly pressing for restoration of martial law in four voting districts - primarily to muzzle unfriendly Damascus press.
- D. Khalid Bakhdash, Syrian Communist leader, in a meeting with leftists (including Col. Sarraj, head of army intelligence), insisted that oil pipelines must be cut off the events in Syria follow the course of those in Jordan.
1. Held such action would be effective retaliation against US, Saudis.
  2. Bakhdash and Sarraj threat cannot be discounted.
